PROGRAM FEES

Let GMD staff present a program on design for your class, community, or professional group. Designed for groups of all ages, GMD programs feature lectures and discussions about design, illustrated by Powerpoint slides and collection objects (when presented at McNeal Hall). Presentations are made by GMD staff and trained volunteers at McNeal Hall on the University of Minnesota's Saint Paul campus, or at locations throughout the Twin Cities (up to a 50 mile radius from campus).

Programs may be selected from the following list or be customized for your group. Each slide-illustrated lecture or lecture/tour between 30 minutes to an hour as requested by the group. For on-site programs at McNeal Hall, viewing collection objects and/or a gallery tour may be added to the experience.

Currently developed programs (a partial list):

- Goldstein Museum of Design: An Introduction
- Museum Objects: From Donor to Researcher
- Russel Wright's Lasting Impact
- Handbags Through the Ages
- Length and Width: Hemlines and Silhouettes from 1920-1970
- Fashion of the Roaring 20s

Contact Jean McElvain, Assistant Curator, 612.625.2737 or jmcelvai@umn.edu at least one month in advance of the date(s) you would like to schedule a lecture, to discuss your group’s interest.
